Families may apply for free or reduced price meals or free milk for their children for school year 2008-2009 according to guidelines effective July 1, 2008. Applications will be provided to all households by the local school/center.

Households that are currently on Food Stamps or Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) will receive letters indicating that their children are eligible for FREE meals at the school or center. These families SHOULD NOT complete an application for free meals. They should bring the letter or a copy of the letter to the school/center. Families receiving commodities through the Food Distribution Program on Indian Reservations (FDPIR) can request an Interagency Action Notice that can be brought to the school/center in place of an application to document eligibility for free meals. Children who are homeless, runaway, or from a migrant family may be eligible for free meals or free milk. Contact school/center for more information

Most foster children are eligible for free or reduced price meals or free milk regardless of the income of the household in which they reside. Households with a foster child should contact the school/center for more information on how to apply for the benefits.

To apply for free or reduced price meals, other households should fill out the application and return it to the school/center. An application must include the names of children for whom benefits are requested, all family members and their monthly income, and be signed by an adult household member with that person's social security number. Incomplete applications cannot be approved for free and reduced price meals. Additional copies are available in the school/center office. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used for the purpose of determining eligibility status for meals and, in schools, for Title I programs. If a household that receives food stamps, TANF, or FDPIR (commodities) does not receive the letter from Social Services or the Interagency Notice of Action or chooses not to bring it to school/center, the household should complete an application. An application from these households must include the names of children for whom benefits are being requested, the case number from their program, and the signature of an adult household member. Information on any application may be verified at any time during the school year by school/center or other program officials.

Applications may be submitted at any time during the year. The family should contact the school/center if a household member becomes unemployed or if the household size changes. If a parent or guardian becomes unemployed, the children from that household may be eligible for free or reduced price meals or free milk during the time of unemployment if the household's income falls within the income eligibility guidelines.

If a parent or guardian is dissatisfied with the ruling on the application for eligibility, she/he may contact the determining official on an informal basis. If the parent or guardian wishes to make a formal appeal, an oral or written request may be made to the school's/center's hearing official for a hearing to appeal the decision.

Some schools/centers may choose to send a special notice about the Children's Health Insurance Program to households with the application. It provides a way for school/center personnel to know if families will allow them to use students' eligibility status for other program benefits. The decision whether or not a household is eligible for meal benefits or not is not affected by this form.

Children who get free or reduced price meals are treated the same as children who pay for meals. No child will be discriminated against in accordance with Federal law and U.S. Department of Agriculture policy. "In accordance with Federal law and U.S. Department of Agriculture policy, this institution is prohibited from discriminating on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, age, or disability. To file a complaint of discrimination, write USDA, Director, Office of Civil Rights, 1400 Independence Avenue, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20250-9410, or call (800) 795-3272 (voice) or (202) 720-6382 (TTY). USDA is an equal opportunity provider and employer."

Below are the income scales to be used to determine an applicant's eligibility for free or reduced price meals if the family is at or below the guidelines.

ATTACHMENT F – All agencies are required to complete and return this chart for all of the responsible principals and individuals within your agency. We cannot approve your agreement until all of the information on the chart below is completed and on file in our office.

RESPONSIBLE PRINCIPALS AND INDIVIDUALS – A responsible principal or individual is: (a) a principal, whether compensated or uncompensated, who the state agency or Food and Nutrition Services (FNS) determines to be responsible for an institution's serious deficiency; (b) any other individual employed by, or under contract with, an institution or sponsored center, who the state agency or FNS determines to be responsible for an institution's serious deficiency; or (c) an uncompensated individual who the state agency or FNS determines to be responsible for an institution's serious deficiency. FNS has determined that the following positions (by definition) are considered to be institution principals: the agency's CEO (or equivalent) or owner and the board president. The State of South Dakota has determined that the following positions in the CACFP are considered to be institution principals: the Authorized Representative, the Claim Representative, and the Food Service Director. There may be other individuals within your organization that you would consider to be responsible individuals that you should report on a separate page, if needed. We will maintain this information confidentially unless such actions occur on the part of your agency which requires termination for cause, at which time, we must provide this information to the USDA for placement on the National Disqualified List. Complete the following chart. If you need more space, include this information on a separate sheet of paper. The positions listed in the title column are mandatory. If the same person holds more than one title, you do not need to repeat the information in the last three columns (you only need to list the name of the person in that position again).
